

ETHANOL FUEL

I have discussed ethanol in gasoline and how it pertains to extended storage several times. Rather than go into detail about the increase from 10% to 15% that was recently approved by the EPA you can get the answers to your questions by Googling "Ethanol Fuel". At the bottom of the page is an interesting story presented in the Boston Herald.

I imagine having to use an additive with every tank full will become a reality soon. I can't help but feel that the consumer is being made the pawn again. The industries that are involved with ethanol are stirring the pot now.

The increase was originally approved for 2007 and newer vehicles because that is the earliest year tested. Ethanol producers are saying that vehicles back to 1996 will be okay to use this new blend.
