What's New? By Don Finkle: Good grief, there is a lot of news to report this week. I could easily make this a full time job, but it doesn't pay very well....

This is probably a waste of time, but I have to write it anyway. PLEASE register early for the events you plan on sailing this season. In many cases you do not have to pay at the time of registration, so we aren't talking about tying up a lot of dough months in advance. There are three very good reasons to sign up early. First, it is very helpful, and only fair, to let the host organization know how many and who to expect. Second, it encourages other sailors to attend the event when they see who is coming. Third, once you sign up you are more likely to attend, you and your crew will do the necessary planning so you will get there. At the end of the season you will be glad that you did!

There have been a number of articles recently about the need for more sportsmanship in racing, especially abiding by the Rules and respect for competitors. I count myself among those who have screwed up in the past and so this is not a "holier than thou" rant. The competitive juices get the better of most of us at some point. But then it is up to us to do the right thing.

After a long off-season it is exciting to see boats going in the water again, and especially the new boats we are delivering to their proud owners. This week alone we are commissioning two new Beneteau First 10R's and a Beneteau First 36.7. We do most of our commissioning work in Buffalo and then move the boats on their own bottoms back to their home ports.

We appreciate the kind comments on the RCR Buffalo Marina bathroom renovations that continue to pour in from our customers. Thanks for your patience, but the results are worth it. Please stop by next weekend for our Spring Open House and Picnic. This year we are adding a Flea Market section, where you can bring your excess "stuff" and put it out for sale during the picnic.

No matter how many times we have mentioned this subject it still seems that not everyone has gotten the message, so we'll try again. The used boat business works like real estate from the standpoint of multiple listing services and the sharing of boats between listing and selling brokers. We routinely cooperate with other brokers from all over, where one of us has a buyer and the other has the boat for sale. The commission the seller pays is the same, and there is no impact on the cost to the buyer. The brokers just share the standard commission between them. In recent months we have done co-brokered deals for a variety of race boats, such as a J/100, J/35, Beneteau 36.7, C&C 99, C&C 38-3, and Schock 35 for example. So what you see on our used boat list is only a small portion of what we have available to sell. If you're looking, give us a call and let us find it for you. And if you are selling, our larger network increases the odds.

For Sale Antique Outboard- 1948 Evinrude Ranger 1.5 hp. In original condition. Turns over. Pictures available. Tim Booth tbooth@k-100.com

Tim Booth of YYC wants to remind any of us who own a boat with an engine that current formulations of fuel, both gas and diesel, can create problems if a fuel additive is not used. Gasoline now has ethanol in it, a real problem in boat fuel tanks. The sulfur content in diesel has been greatly reduced, which means that the fuel does not have enough lubricity for the engine to operate properly. Tim's local company manufactures K100 fuel additive that will make your engine run better and longer, either gas or diesel. K100G for gas engines, K100D for diesel.

Commentary:

From a reader: Don, This is in response to your question "where are all the crew helping the Captains prepare the boats for the season". This is what's indicative of my entire racing program. Most of my crew are my age (60+/-). Several have their own boats and all own a house. They feel overwhelmed in the spring with household chores or their own boats. Next problem, our children are now in their late 30's. They have jobs, families and their own homes to deal with. Finally our wives who say "hey, that's your sport, not mine." So us lonely skippers go to the yard by ourselves and do what we have to. On the bright side, I will have 7 crew with me this Saturday for my annual "waxing party". Mike"

Warning on Diesel Fuel, by Tim Booth: "In an effort to reduce the various pollutants The Feds have changed the specifications on all diesel fuels. All "on highway" diesel fuels must now contain no more than 15 ppm sulfur. Off road fuels, including marine fuels must contain no more than 500 ppm sulfur. In each case this is a significant reduction in allowable sulfur. One of the consequences of reducing the sulfur content is that it has reduced the lubricity of the fuels. As you know the fuel supply equipment (high pressure pumps and injectors) rely on the lubricity of the fuel to keep them working properly. A second consequence is that to achieve these lower sulfur levels the refiners have to hydrotreat the fuel which increases the dissolved water content of the 15ppm fuel.

In order to produce a fuel that meets government specs but doesn't harm the fuel supply equipment the refiners are adding a lubricity improver at the refinery. The minimum lubricity rating of D-2 is currently 520 (per ASTM specification). The older higher sulfur fuels typically had a lubricity rating in the 400s. A lower number means it was slipperier. Most engine manufacturers recommend using a fuel with a lubricity rating of 440 or lower. This is a case were a lower number is better.

To further complicate the whole issue all tanks, delivery equipment, etc. must be segregated by fuel type. In other words the delivery truck can't carry highway fuel today and off highway fuel tomorrow. As a result most fuel distributors have dropped "off road fuels". The law allows them to sell you "on highway" fuel as "off road fuel." So while boaters would be better served by receiving 500 ppm fuel (more lubricity), in most cases they are receiving 15 ppm fuel.

Your customers could ask the retailer if they are receiving 15ppm fuel or 500 ppm fuel though most retailers won't know what they are getting. Both fall under the D-2 classification as described in the ASTM specification.

From a practical standpoint we recommend using a diesel fuel additive that will improve the lubricity rating. When used at recommended treatment ratios K100-D will improve the rating from 480 to 360. That brings the fuel well below the engine manufacturers recommended lubricity rating. There are other additives on the market that are also lubricity improvers, though I can't give you a specific set of numbers. Some fuel distributors offer a "premium diesel fuel" which may contain additional lubricity additives.

There are other fuel specifications that effect over the road truckers such as cetane, and CFPP rating that really don't effect us too much as we don't operate in freezing weather.

If your eyes haven't glazed over yet I could get into dissolved water and talk about increased risk of microbe growth and accelerated fuel deterioration. Happy to discuss that at length if your customer wants more info. Tim"
